EDITORIAL ORGANIZATION FIRST

There has been much hue and cry of late about the canteen.

According to these people who are supposedly in the know, the enterprise isn't being operated on a sound basis. Prices are too high; merchandise stock is incomplete; and where do "all the profits go anyhow."

Furthermore, they want to know when the cooperative system will be started and why it has not been organized before this.

First of all, let us remember that there is a war on. Prices all along the line have risen, are rising, despite organized measures by the government to prevent it.

Commodities, too, are not so plentiful to the people on the outside, let alone to those of us in the centers. It is no longer a question of "how much?" but one of "can I buy it even if I'm willing to pay the price?"

As to when the cooperative will be organized, that is a matter strictly up to the recently-elected temporary community council, which met in session for the first time this week.

It will be the council's job to study thoroughly the cooperative method of business, its advantages and disadvantages, successful cooperatives already operating elsewhere, adapt the composite results of the study and research to the local picture.

It need not be mentioned here that setting up such a program will be a formidable task. Those who are clamoring for an immediate canteen cooperative forgot that the cooperative program will embrace all community enterprises, not just the canteen.

It will include the barber shops, beauty parlors, clothing stores, shoe repairing, a score of other enterprises vital and necessary to a community of 9000 people.

But before all these various enterprises, or any one of them, can be set up, a cooperative organization has to be formed. And to that end is working the temporary council, which has been entrusted with the job of drafting preliminary plans for the body.

It is simply a matter of organizing first.

Anybody demanding an immediate cooperative canteen is making the common mistake of placing the cart before the horse.

ENCOURAGING

Everybody seems to be cutting wood. That is, everybody but me. But we'll not go into that. Every weekend truckload after truckload of volunteer crews go out to incur sore muscles and blisters for the sake of the block.

DISCOURAGING

One block hauled in some wood, chopped it up, stacked it up to be distributed.

Then the barrack representatives (the intra-block council) gathered in solemn session to decide how the wood should be divided.

For over three long hours, they argued the pros and cons of the various ways to divide the firewood. Finally, they agreed upon a method.

AMUSING

Next morning, they divided the wood per agreement and told the people to come and pick up the wood. Most of them did. But few raised a protest because one or two stacks seemed to have a couple of more pieces than the others. One man wanted the stacks divided equally, piece for piece. Another was all for measuring them off with a tape-measure.

And long after the rest of the people had packed their shares home and forgotten about them, these men were still bickering about this very important issue of why one pile of wood had one or two pieces more than another.

WRA programs including clothing allowances, public assistance grants and future verification of vital statistics will be based on these official records. This basic file will be used also for all community occupational, educational and recreational activities, Moulton emphasized.

Conducted in all the WRA centers, the records will be permanent files of personal and family identifications. They will assist Centerites in keeping contacts with their relatives, friends and business connections, he said.

BAKING AND COOKING CLASSES DELAYED

Difficulties have caused a delay in plans for baking and cooking classes.

The time and place for interviews and a definite program will be announced later, L. A. May, project steward, disclosed.

WEAVING COURSE

Instructor's weaving course, approved by the State Department of Education, was started last week under the supervision of Esther Fukushima, according to Adeline Lee, director of Arts and Crafts.

After satisfactory completion of the six-week course, diplomas as instructors in weaving will be awarded to the ten students who comprise the class, Miss Lee said.

The shipment is expected today, he said.

YWCA SECRETARY TO CONFER HERE

Especially assigned to help establish YWCA in relocation projects, Miss Briesemoister will visit the Granada, Heart Mountain and Topaz centers before coming here, Price said.

Girls interested in YWCA activities are asked to report to the community activities office in the West administration building, it was announced.

GILA RIVER SUITABLE FOR TRUCK CROPS

The Gila River relocation center is located in the south central part of Arizona on the grounds of the Indian Pima reservation.

This center, which is divided up into two communities three miles apart, has huge tracts of land that are well adapted to the growing of such trucking crops as melons, beans, tomatoes, carrots, lettuce and other foodstuffs.

This area is also one of the few in the country where long-staple cotton can be grown. Production plans for 1943 call for three thousand acres of this crop.

The area, lying about 1500 feet above sea level, is fairly level, quite fertile and has a growing season of about 247 days.

Rainfall averages ten inches a year. Summers are long and hot, winters short and mild.

Temperatures have ranged from nine degrees above zero in winter up to 117 degrees in the summer months.

THREE PIGSKIN LEAGUES START

Organization of midget, lightweight and unlimited leagues to start competitive touch football in this Center was announced by the athletic department.

The qualifications for the midget league are 100 pounds or less and 12 years or under; for the lightweight league, maximum weight of 120 pounds and 16 years or under; and for the unlimited league, more than 120 pounds and above 17 years. The midget class with an earlier start will continue with the supplement of additional teams.

As it will be an open league, players on teams will not be restricted to blocks or districts. The deadline for entries was set for Nov. 28, noon, at the athletic office, 27-8-E.

Play-offs with Jerome are being planned.

BOXING CLASSES TO BE ORGANIZED

Boxing classes are now being organized with Takashi Hisashima in charge. 27-8-E will be open all week to sign up boxing aspirants.

General meeting for all boxers will be held on Wednesday at 7 p.m. at 27-8-E.

ALL-STARS CHALLENGED

ROHWER TEAM TO CLASH WITH SECOND STOCKTON UNIT

The united Rohwer center team will meet the challenge of the second Stockton unit tomorrow at 2 p.m. on the high school field.

This will be the first time that the residents of the Center will be able to see the Rohwer squad cavort in an actual game. The new combine, including the best players from both Stockton and Santa Anita, will field a powerful and versatile team deep in reserves. The average weight of the line will be about 180 lbs. and the backfield, 165 lbs.

REC. NOTES:

SOFTBALL AND VOLLEYBALL

As several softball teams have been organized, regardless of no softball league, any teams desiring to play are requested to contact the athletic department.

Also block activities leaders are asked to organize men's volleyball squads and to sign the teams up at the athletic office immediately.

On the other hand the Stockton squad will be handicapped by lack of training time. Beginning practice on Monday, the players have not been able to follow a rigid practice program. However, Coach Matsuo Okazaki will field a fast and aggressive eleven. The line should average about 150 lbs. and the backfield, 130 lbs.

After taking all the facts into consideration the Rohwer team must be given the definite edge.
